They think they do not need to hide fraud since they can just use the Force Trick of telling you that what you saw isn't real. Gaslighting. It's all the same, the lies of the character disordered and the brokenness of those who need to believe them

Whether at level of home or homeland.

The manipulation is the same whether they're doing it for political sentiment or market. The trick is that the markets are rigged and the propaganda is used to paper the history.

Pretty neat trick, isn't it? Used again and again. Helps to be able to think backwards to see through it.

Here, read this.

Thread version. Please read. This is how the alchemist transmits media control to money and power. It is tawdry and trivial.

Yarvin: "you are already living in a Communist Country."

Me: "that's what the commies think, pal."

Do they really think they are going to get away this?

Do you think they'll steal Christmas and get away with it even though voiceless Trumpmos put their Xmas funds into a desperate rebel effort?

Is that how you want this

Here's the prologue thread to this one. Please read it in full before I continue. I've shown you the basic trick, now let's work some examples.

See, they used to be just suppression polls, but this was supposed to be the year they shifted to an entirely simulacrum campaign.

And they thought people wouldn't notice!

The magic trick goes as follows.

1. Say something absurd. Invert the truth and treat it as your whore. Make it as offensive as possible so that simple folk focus on the mode of expression, the dishonor.

OK I told it all to my wife. This represents decades of careful study by an adept. And I'd like to unfold all the secrets of the world for you here. But I wonder, are you ready? Let me know when to continue, I'll shitpoast in the meantime.

Let me get you hype. This whole #lawoffunny thing was just PR for what comes next. Seeing through the planned election fraud was quite trivial.

I've been at this for a while.

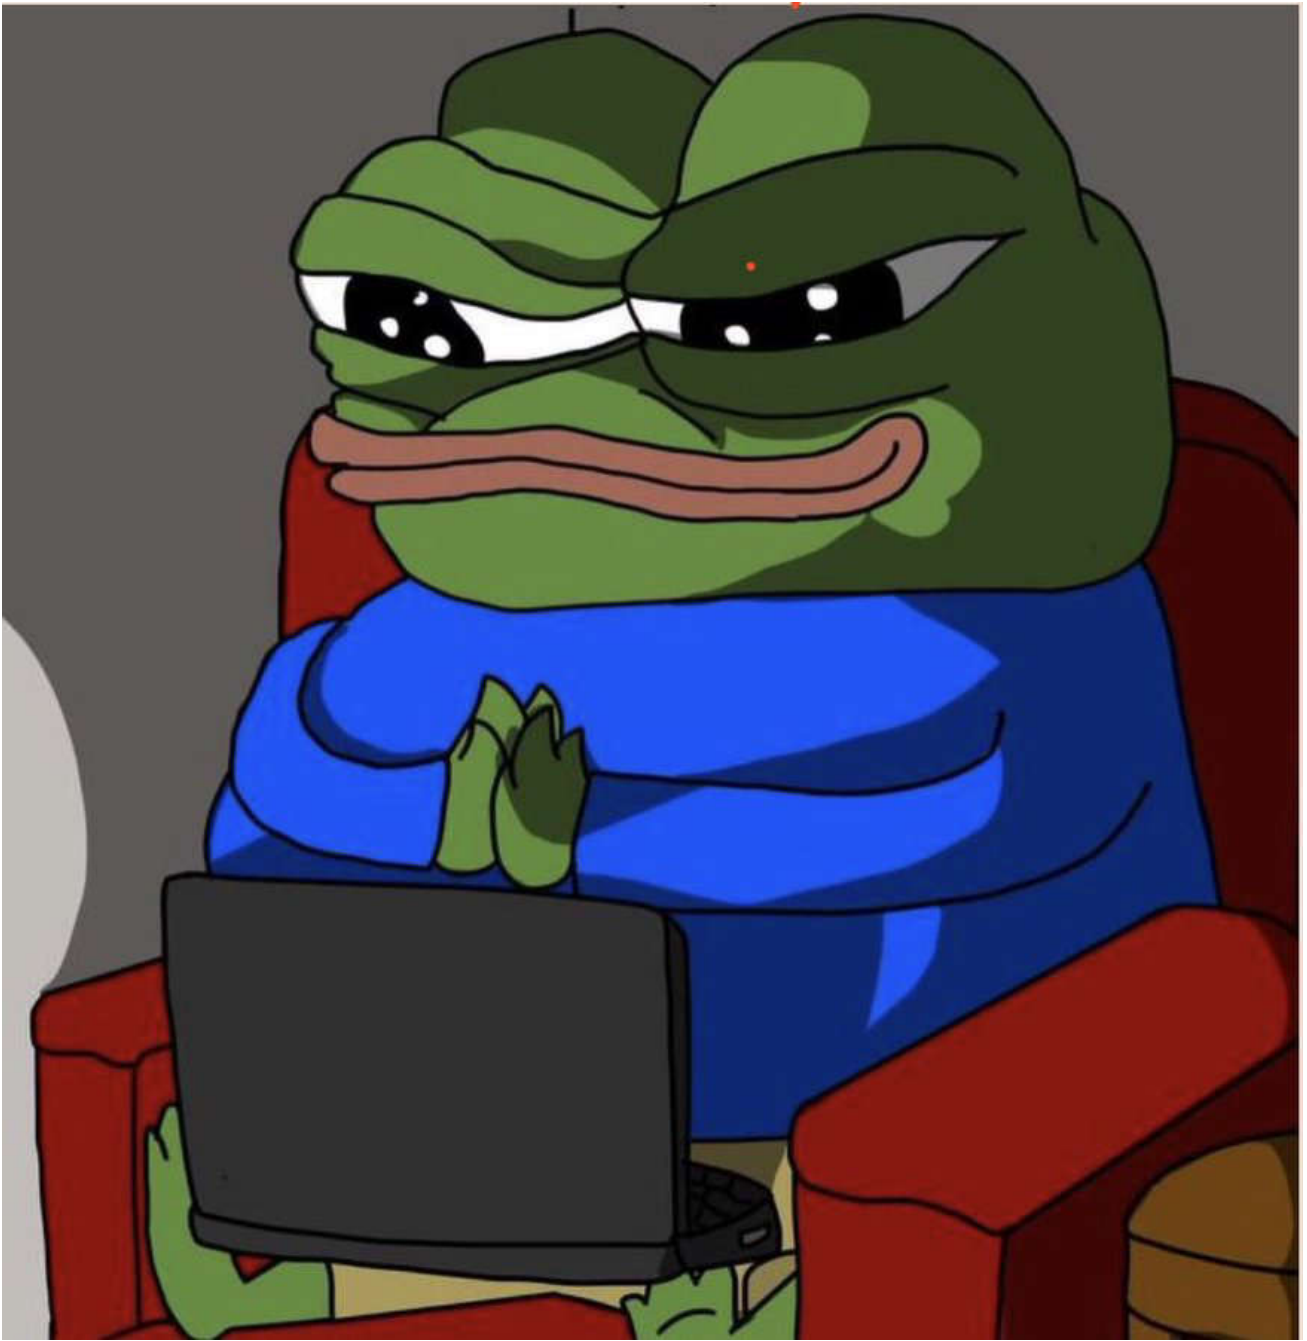

<https://twitter.com/PereGrimmer/status/1290668492161789954?s=20>

2. The Hank Hill types react to the symbols but miss the actual gift going on behind the scenes. That's why they're satisfied by RINOs who play whack a mole with some villain of the month. They're all implicitly on the same team.

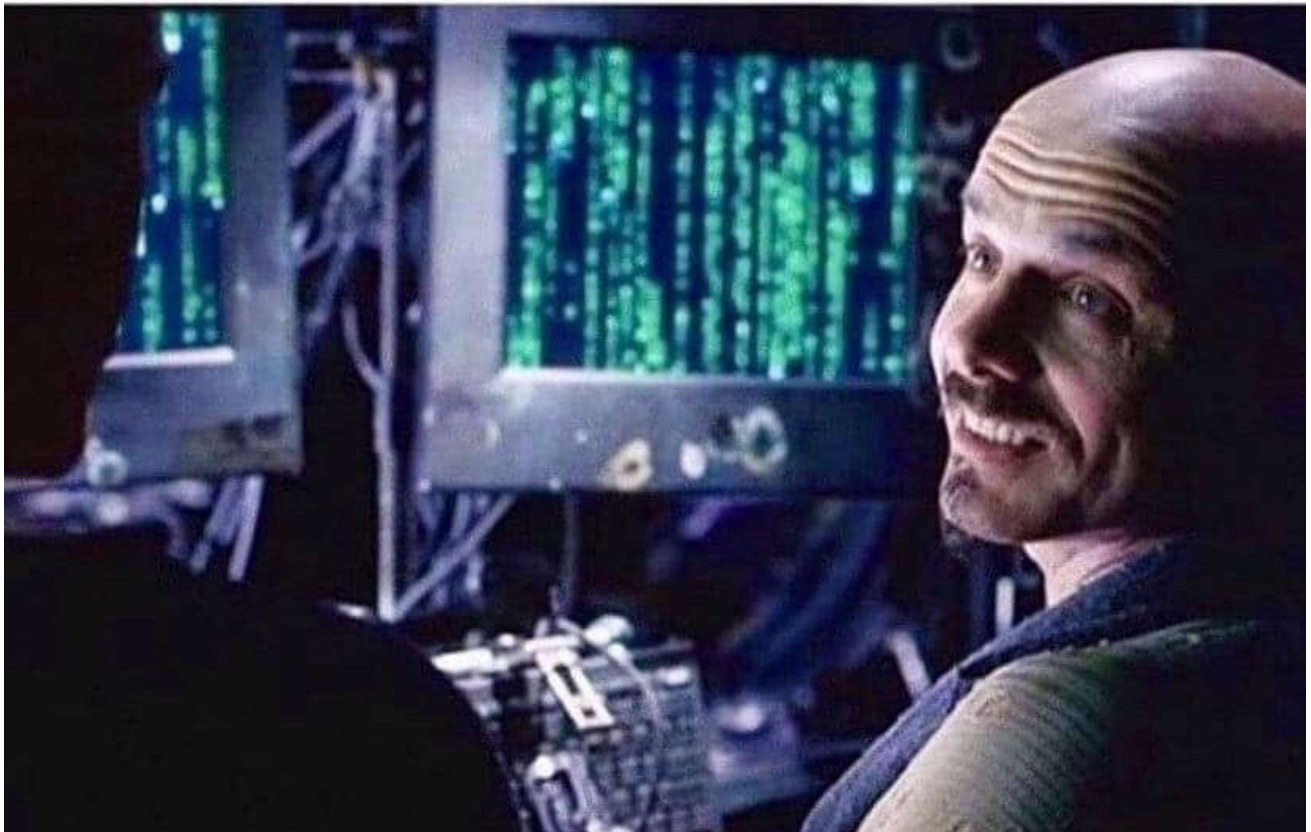

"You get used to it, I don't even see the news anymore. All I see is false flag, psyop, bullshit."

He doesn't realize that he's playing the market role of sham opposition. And I'm not saying he's playing it intentionally (he's not) but the market is training him to play that role.

But why? Well, it's been manipulated!

Here's the first step: someone keeps doing something outrageous because it's beyond the bounds of your identity (tabu) causing you to behave in a stereotyped fashion. (Why do I keep bringing you back to this first step?)

#HOLYQUARTENARY2022

Identity is adversarial. You need to win and keep it against the constant implicit threat of peers.

Identity is procedural. Identity just is what's left over after idealized war of all against all has run its course. People who are attached to some false part of their identity will come to be controlled by it until they adapt.

"Consilience" is the notion that all knowledge should eventually interlock, producing a unified understanding of reality. Below is a network showing this unity, as measured by co-citations.

It appears the humanities never received this memo, and have now reached escape velocity!

Correct. He's thinking of the web of knowledge or something. Consilience does not prescribe a network structure.

Nakama :D ~ Darky's Anime Gifs

Trump has ALWAYS had the goods on the #spygate plotters. Since before they started.

Trump never needed to let the great Pause&Dump proceed. He didn't need to let the Covid shit happen. IT WAS A SETUP.

The whole point of it was to fire the bellies of Hank Hill aspie democracy lovers and their hot and BASED wives so that people got into the spirit of #1776 and started doing the direct democracy thing themselves. The reason POTUS didn't fund Braynard is that it's a better story!

What has happened is that the MSM/DNC/CCP etc corporatist media news manufacturing warpig complex has gotten owned.

President Trump's entire run and first term was performance art to bring us to this point.

And the point of his performance art is for people to wake up to the kayfabe (here, the kayfabe is whether the "Christmas Miracle" of our deliverance from the Crab People fraudsters is complete -- and it will be, that was the whole point of allowing Mueller to go on, obviously)!

Was the fact that this is all a setup really not obvious? I mean, consider:

This guy gets it.

Trump never asserted privilege during the Mueller investigation. He may really be the cleanest dude ever. Why did he put up with all that shit?

| <https://twitter.com/PereGrimmer/status/1121761672690110465?s=20>

President Trump's initial impulse, after just going through the phony impeachment construct, after learning of Covid was to say it was basically just the flu. He turned out to be quite right, but uncharacteristically changed his approach. Why?

President Trump is sitting on the ability to order the real-time, fancy shmancy, military-grade time-series covid and election data to be sent to DOJ or the special counsel and then deployed in the #MOAB. See what he does instead?

Could it be that it's all a show to smoke out the rats? They know based on the TIPP sim that they cannot win. They are just hanging on to see if they can get away with a bag of money and a getaway face. That's the real deal, when you look at the reality and not the kayfabe.

So are you ready to stop mooning like a woman over the little soap opera Trump has constructed in the blind spot of #blindPolymepheus and to get to the real secrets of the world?

I say mooning like a woman since people in the throes of anxiety about the result of the election, which has been fixed this whole time since the Dems never actually tried to win and in fact want to lose and be punished, are under the spell of President Trump's game.

This is very close.

He set it up this way so that WE, THE PEOPLE would seriously confront the existential danger our country is in and get involved. And it worked! Here I am—all in! That god damn man made me cry!

. @bronzegemantis did you notice this? I can always tell President Trump's plans by how he romances Maria. On the "BIG DUMPS" interview he gave, he intentionally acted coy about whether he could possibly save Christmas with his rag-tag band of rebels.

President Trump had to let the Dems show their true, Crab People colors, burning and looting and just being predatory gangsters, in order for the true Old Gods of the Country, the Helens of Try and Xantippes, to bug their husbands into doing something.

How the fuck does Trump keep winning? It's easy, he just insists he wins no matter what weird claim the other side makes, then constructs a classic movie narrative that fits into the spandrells of what he knows he other side will do. It's easy.

Trump has nothing to prove. That means he has got leverage in every interaction with counterparties, since he can walk away. The person who cares less is always in the driver's seat. That means to carry forward any ideals in life, you must in expectation not care for your life.

Remember: "the drunken driver has the right of way". Never bet with a madman if you can't identify the reason they are mad — as you may be the "mad" one.

Analysis: With urgent problems facing him, Biden cannot afford early missteps

President-elect Joe Biden is pictured delivering a Thanksgiving speech on Thursday, Nov. 25, 2020. Before the Biden team can produce the results they have promised, they still have to persuade the public - and likely at least a few Senate Republicans, who could still be in the majority come January. ( Washington Post photo by Demetrius Freeman)

... as you may have noticed, Trump is deemed mad whenever he materially opposes the interests listed below.

The commies who are ever seeking the same thing.

| <https://twitter.com/PercGrimmer/status/1330962959825330178?s=20>

President Trump knows they'll always seek the same thing, since the overall scheme (not the people) operates as a predictable situation-reaction machine. It is this predictability, and the predictable reaction of the population, that sets up Trump's plays.

Thus, for the above: Trump knew due to reports he would have gotten by way of Thomas More, and he knew besides, about Zuckerberg's extremely expensive vote-fraud scheme. He let Zuckerberg do it, and Zuck thought it was safe to do it, because both sides thought they had a....

...secret trick, a "black box," that rendered everything the other side did completely irrelevant.

Each side thinks it has an ultimate nullifier; but then, Trump was supposed to be vaporized long ago. Why is he still kicking?

Sure. An example. Step 4 for Dems, the "Trick Box" that was supposed to make everything else irrelevant was the DVS tabulators and, as a backup, various forms of ballot- and signature-fraud. For Trump, the trick is that he has a "trick box" such that he can select from enough potential paths to victory to construct a narrative that will maximally compel and meme the grateful populace into the spirit of #1776 -- namely, ODNI, NSA, etc. surveillance over all the members of the conspiracy, and the raw data feeds re covid and voting. What President Trump has done is pretend like he is the wounded Siegfried in this opera, so that the everyman is moved to his greatness and picks up the mantle of Trump. Far from being a fascist or tyrant, in other words, Trump is going for the Hero's Death, in which

... his republican spirit of raw sacrifice for the country, doing OUR THING with free speech and commerce and libertas, ignites a sort of firestorm throughout the nation and leads us to throw out the moneychangers, rectify the laws, and restore our original republican constn.

Now let me take you back to step one. Did I mention that I wouldn't have revealed my power level with #lawoffunny and all that if it was just about Trump winning? Of course he was going to win. The question is what we do after. That's what I am declaring

I was deeply influenced by OBL and the problem of dealing with fanatics. I quickly came to realize that the dynamics of dealing with a fanatic sect would lead us to either get subverted, or evolve a new fanaticism. It's the latter: Trump is the antibody.

Don't you get it, comrade? That is what he is doing. He is changing the shape of the political manifold using the pure power of meme magic!

That's what they count on! They want to make you angry and then provoke a reaction. Then they can paper over history by saying the provocation was somehow caused by your layer reaction. Then they bring to a new group of people not familiar with the ... dynamic and show the bruises or evidence of bad temper and that he's out of control to them, and they they use force to remove the man's freedom and will and history can be papered, leaving only the "damn spot" of guilt and shame.

"I'm not a fascist! I'm not a rapier! I'm not an abuser! That's not fair!" is what they want you to say — that's what guilty and low status people sound like.

Did Trump ever do that?

Before I do, any questions? This part may be emotionally difficult for some of you.

Not hearing much, I'll just blurt out some answers. Anxiety comes from the fear of death. It is irrational since death is nothing to fear, in fact as Socrates pointed out you don't actually seem to experience death at all; so what is really feared is dissolution of the "ego".

Teaching a baby values involves the exact same process as training a market.

It in fact is the exact same process.

Raising a kid to be your brainwashed slave is no different from market manipulation like a pump and dump scheme. It is just the same thing.

Meanwhile, in the news — ATOM BOMB DETONATES ON DNC

Did you ever really think #spentforce had a chance? No. You were just afraid of #toomuchwinning — but I'm not, I want to show how we can really extend this little victory in 2020, which was easy, into a Renaissance for the US and the World. This is big stuff.

I've made a study of Soros's philosophy, biography, and market manipulation techniques, and can now pretty easily trace back characteristic techniques he employs to him. I've also made a sympathetic study of his character, and thus know for certain he can never beat Trump.

Neither can King David or, idk, the Levi Family Heirs or any other of these out-of-sight losers. Why? "Their strength has made them weak". Trump has been out there hustling, playing the _real game,_ the game without the fix in, for a very long time. He remembers how the pure form goes. People who have been using aimbots on their FPS game (KAFF Kimble KAFF) can't match up, because they've never been in a fight, they've just been jerking off in a Zoom meeting.

Because Trump came up playing the real game, he knows about the true physical constraints. I went through a lot of them, like ballot reject rates if you fairly apply the law—not some commie scheme—in my Oct 1 thread. But by then I knew Trump had it in the bag since...

... he had the libs owned, as in, he had them fully predicted, while they had no idea what he was up to. (They failed to provoke him with all the terror this summer, and then had to just sheepishly hang it up).

I'd predicted all this, since it was obvious Dem oligarchs were just running their color war strategy: incite riots with agents and wreckers, then get the news to report the riots mean the regime has lost its mandate and fake news polls for same, then fix the voting and use the result to take formal coercive power. It's chickens come home to roost

Yes—the dynamic in a mental war is a test of provocation vs. indifference, in pure form. A gross out contest: whose frame is absorbed, and whose broken? It's a game for control over mental space. If you care, you lose.

Why do WEIRD people with high openness so dominate the world? Because they can incorporate the customs of others who cannot accommodate theirs. That's being owned. You're seen through from the outside while you are blind.

Trump knew the other side has loser mentality. Yarvin has a loser mentality since he's scared of Cthullu. It's true that Cthulu always swims left IF YOU LEAVE IT ALIVE: it's a cancer that can reassemble itself from a single complexed NPC. But Cthullu can never WIN.

Cthullu can never WIN for it has no WILL: there is no motive force, no raw energy, that goes into commie gangster plotting—instead there is just compulsive movement. They believe they have no free will and so they've not. Progs are sad and lonely, man Literally their only weapon is to project their self-loathing onto others who seem to have substance. Those people then become the totem targets for liberal self-hatred. When a lib says, "I hate Trump," they really mean, "please kill me, please Trump save me"

Do the people reading have experience with abusive relationships? Do I need to spell out the play that Trump is making?

#hankillheroes

Just so except you need to remember libs always project.

Why do libs always project? Because projection just is how two minds meet: one first assumes a pattern thought to be an agent is like one's self, then carves out any idiosyncratic preferences.

"It's bad on purpose to make you click."

That seems a bit backwards to me: when you click on stuff that's bad, you will see more such things. If you want to stop seeing it, stop clicking.

Why is that so hard? Because you have the delusory belief in control you don't have. Do you still think me mad? Maybe you're on the verge of an #Epiphany.

Let me demonstrate what I mean again as we get into a worked example.

@AliceFromQueens — I take it your backers all decided Trump has cold feet? I think you know he's been treated unfairly and so your guilt is driving you to give me Trumpbux.

Notice where I put this bid and the psych analysis. All that is just empty ritual meant to get her to take a dumb bet.

Read this on mindset:

Playing to Win —
Sirlin.Net — Game
Design

<http://www.sirlin.net/ptw/>

If you actually read the TIPP report, the setup for this election is that the Commie DNC expects to lose.

Specifically, they have been expecting Trump to use his Ansible and round them all up. They've presumably been fooled by the Barr ruse —Barr's role was to look like he was on the side of the plotters. I know he's not since I've heard him talk about mortality in terms that would be impossible for any liberal of the Cathedral, as they are, by design, broken and incomplete people.

I knew Trump would win since, two elections in a row now, he has stunned by actually playing the game like it is supposed to be played instead of running some gimmick. The sheer reality of the man overwhelms every politician from the modern era. Why? Because they're not people

... they are just pawns. The point of exposing Trump to setpiece after setpiece where he is shat upon by disrespectful shrews is to devalue the authority of his office until a coup can just mop things up.

The issue is that, in social life, every wrong generates an equal and opposite demand for justice. As a monarch, you need to keep your physical and mental control of the populace above a certain level, or they will tear you limb from limb.

This general dynamic is addressed, equivalent, in the context of a two-party relationship in Hegel, the Master-Slave Dialectic. Worth reading:

https://en.wikipedia.org/wiki/Master%E2%80%93slave\_dialectic

We've lost a sense of service. Everybody must be a master. But many men, myself included, live to serve.

We've lost a sense of duty. Every day a new "right" is invented, but the concept of rights is utterly meaningless without corresponding duties.

We've "lost" nothing. These things don't just slip and fall from the collective unconsciousness.

Rather, there has been a coordinated plot to misinform the young so that they will be better Subjects.

Now, this is where intellectuals tend to get hung up, since they tend to wrongly assume that everything with apparent agency, caused by the interactions of humans, is itself human. Not so: look at the simple rules that govern flocking behavior, for example.

RICO enterprises that are as evolved as the DNCommie party are cancer cells—they'll kept being driven by their wish for/fear of death to energetically wreck functioning societies and things of substance until healed of their spiritual affliction (immortal adolescence) or killed.

Our side will never be like this, as the other side is made up of people who just like to grill, not people to join local politics. The stalwarts of our side are the Hank Hill heroes: they're kind of aspie and they know what's right, but they have little defense to grifters.

(I want to be clear that the dynamic of conflicting Appollonian Logic and Indifference and Dionysian provocation is as old as human nature. The war between tribes doesn't differ from the rift between a man and a woman, etc. But the existing rift, which has always been part of life, tends to get worsened in an exploitative way when there's a tech change, since tech diffuses down the SES gradient leading there to be a front of naive and trained information market participants).

This thread is already too abstruse for a general audience, so I'm not going to get into my model of multi person disinfo and coercive force games, or Friston. Instead I'll leave with thoughts on mindset.

First, Trump is kind. Trump has never wanted revenge on the misguided libs in the streets slandering him—he feels bad they've been abused as kids, and wants them to grow up. But you can't make someone grow up—at best, you can get them to confront their mortality.

Maybe by going and dying? Have you ever noticed that if you get NPC's angry enough, they start shouting things they really wanted to tell someone else? "I hate you dad!" etc. — and that that tends to boil down to, "I am lonely and scared"? That is why trolling is so powerful:

Hatred is a very great investment and very far from indifference. If you can make someone hate you, you can generally control them.

The Institutions (commie-infested schools, universities, etc.) operate by stripping the self-respect from kids and making it so that they can only answer fact questions vouchsafed by some authority. They can consult formulas, but the kid successful in government school cannot think or operate for herself. She will always look for social confirmation of any fact, no matter how absurd it is to be looking for it. This is not because she actually believes these facts; rather, it is because she's been conditioned to mouth the right words in order to receive approval (recognition, which is just the same as being alive at all, particularly before you've stabilized to the chord of the Other).

That is, the processes by which most take in and repeat "facts," is, by design, a social process designed to induce obedience, not

We see what becomes of boys: they get medicated or cast out or feminized or all three. Yet they are supposed to be concerned about the misogyny in society and are called rapists as they die of opioids. A fair shake? No, but it seemed hopeless until Trump.

Every commie mind control attack has the effect of creating an artificial division between two subject classes that prevents them from uniting to pursue the common public interest.

The general setup is the same as a breach of the duty of loyalty in corporation law: the value from the conflict is getting drained into a third entity—finance—while there's no resolution to the conflict since the two sides never see one another.

The fact that we're a diverse coalition, we love America and her natural beauty and her traditions of ordered liberty, terrifies the Crabmen plotters.

The fact that we're not paid operatives terrifies the Crabmen plotters.

The Crabmen plotters are terrified of ever having to face a reckoning on the merits. Truth dissolves them: they have no concept of it, since they only have a cancerous concept of Self.

The boomers never dealt with their mortality; they're immortals. That leaves them blind. The sophistic state of our Institutions revealed by Covid shows any family person with any sense that no, this really is it: it's not just this election, if we do not restore our institutions, we have only a carapace of a country, waiting for some more vigorous ppl to take over (The Chinese all-cash buyers think they're the more vigorous people. Why? It's what they've been Carefully Taught in their worthless memorization-monkey schools. The oligarchs have the deluded vision that they can simply copy what another great people did, and if they trick and defraud the heirs of that country, perhaps they will not feel so inferior -- the Chinese, in short, are nothing to worry about, since they have no real Will of their own; rather, it's just a matter of waiting for the internal contradictions in the nation, caused by the...

calculation problem, to drive it apart.)

But we can't really afford to wait that long.

We knew Covid was not a high severity enough illness to justify universal lockdowns (if anything could) right away; we went into lockdowns due to a coordinated misinfo campaign, originated by CCP/commie corporatist fellow travelers, and executed through coordinated control of "public health" institutions like the WHO -- the only function of which appears to be serving as a source of authoritative-sounding commands originating from corporatist oligarchs!

I asked an economist the other day who spends his days studying whether such and such voting systems will lead to "good" outcomes, under rational choice assumptions, why that outcome is "good"; he started repeating his model assumptions.

See the problem?

We teach kids how to be little robots, even though we have wonderful machines called computers; in so doing, we teach them not not to think for themselves, how not to be confident enough to challenge authority, how to close their eyes to the stark truth in front of them.

A society that depends on keeping common knowledge from the populace is not an open society; it is a cabal. In my psychological profile, Soros is most ashamed of betraying Popper (and Peirce, maybe)'s legacy by, with a small group, using early control over the MSM and some dirty ...tricks like control of tabulators and an assassination or two, manipulating the very possibilities of common knowledge; helping to trick people into a system in which they are factors of production and socially-mediated tokens of identity instead of people, etc.

(So many people seem to spend so much time thinking about how great it would be to be in a simulation, as if they'd be any happier being stuck with themselves anywhere they go. Have you ever wondered why bureaucrats get so upset someone might be doing their own thing somewhere?)

Why is Trump putting on this agonizing show? Why is he being so outrageous when he could save us?

Go back to the first step. Are you sure he's being outrageous? Maybe what's really outrageous is all the fraud and graft we've accepted for so many years, as the frog boils. You know who hasn't accepted all the sophistry and nonsense and corruption of our education and our information markets, you know who has been true blue all through the libs bringing down ravening banshees from hell to rend his flesh and unfairly shame him in front of the world?

That's right, Justice Thomas. He has refused to yield on the central issue: that words mean what they say, not whatever the commies need them to say to get the result they want. Without that, there's no law — we're subjects.

In fact now, after decades, we are finally nearing a position where the populace is engaged enough, and the SCOTUS lineup is right, to clear up decades of harmful commie subversivion of our sacred constitution.

There are also tealeaves that this is precisely the course that President Trump is charting. What he is going to do is to use the lib jurisprudence—meant to give their commies unalloyed rule—to restore our constitutional government and institutions, in

Unroll available on Thread Reader

... one huge, beautiful decision. Just the most absolutely epic win of all time, a single court case to wipe out decades of utterly inane commie "jurisprudence" that has no coherence and that the man on the street can't understand. THAT is why Trump hasn't made his move yet—well, that and rolling up all the Tides foot soldiers and the like.

He has the perfect foe: #spentforce can't fight, Kam is a hated idiot, and all the usual plotters are in disarray and expecting to lose. The question is if we are worthy of the MASSIVE win Trump and the Thomist s are handing us.

I'm not so sure. We have many NPC's in society who will likely never adapt to a post-communist country.

But I've warm hopes that, with diligence, they can one day assimilate.

***

I'd also leave with an accelerationist thought.

We got into this mess since commies are always vigilant, and we've typically got real lives.

That needs a structural solution.

I've got one: gambling.

I couldn't motivate people to monitor DA elections this cycle, but next cycle, we're betting on them. And, more generally, we should rigorously review our government structure for opportunities for graft and self-dealing. The lawfare plotters can't fight on the merits, but they are very facile at coming up with vulnerabilities in our system.

I've been using the language of the "left" at times to describe the commies, but that's really playing into their trap. Recall, the ordinary party process is just the kayfabe to keep us from looking where the money goes. It's a uniparty. Fake fights. Trump is beyond the pale since he acts as if politics is supposed to be for real, and actually delivers results. Reality, truth, knowing and being known—the Crabman hates all of these things. But he has no answer for them beyond sophistry and howling.

That's why I've kept emphasizing not being blackpilled by the demoralization media. It doesn't matter what the author thinks, if their market role is to frame demoralization pieces, that's what they'll do.

I'm unable to convey my legal expert opinion on why this is a TRUMPSMASH to people who don't agree already without taking too much effort. And the salt of the earth Trumpmos mostly already get it. I say, let's just have fun and try to do the best we can for our posterity.

This may be the only chance we get.

Yep!

Trump has suffered a lot, all to build up and then release our rebound sense that he should get a fair shake from the world he tried so hard to help. Usually old Tommy sees, and Hank Hill knows, but heck if he can't explain it to Peg and her friends. This time, nobody honest is on Team Stop & Dump in a serious way arguing facts, and the Hank Hills are forming little bands and coalitions like it is 1776. If this goes wrong, we may all be a stain on the wall soon; if right, we may be dining on the city on the hill, amidst the restored republic.

Trump suffered a lot, precisely so that the long-suffered irritation of the poll workers who had been told by their rep "Signature verify" meant an actual attempt to verify signatures, etc., would start to come together and try to do something.

| <https://twitter.com/PereGrimmer/status/1334591920518164481?s=20>

I was totally part of it! I bawled like a little bitch when I talked to some of the expert team that put together an initial analysis, later verified to be killer, with scratch funds or working for free. Just to help that man walk a little farther.

Laugh all you want:

nobody is doing that for #spentforce. Ditto when I heard the story of another expert; and many other times misting when talking to people who haven't been talked to straight by the guys who are too high-class to even use proper manners in a nice restaurant; these god damn IYIs, they'd throw the most loyal friend over the bus, just because some stupid THOT started a dumb rumor, or some SJW's decided to embark on one of their little whisper destruction campaigns.

It's not just about this election, it's about this nation. Not the country, but the nation. We have been disallowed from having a real debate about immigration, because the originally-commie influences that have been secretly directing this country by manipulating pressure points like local DA offices do not think, on substance, we have one. This is their country.

There was no Spycate coup or insurance policy! The coup, rather, was that somehow, this old-school, old-fashioned 80s guy just went out there and developed catnip to the median voter, campaigned his ass off, and, because they didn't rig the Stage 4 Fix tight enough (maybe because the Clinton & Obama families of the DNC Crime Mafia had been at war), that man got through.

When do we ever expect we'll have another shot?

Do you see Cthulu gracefully deciding to turn back towards truth, justice, and the American way, if we just flutily intone the name of #spentforce like an absolution into the Shure-SM58? Or will that capitulation be yet another in a long line of compromises with truth that demoralize us by informing us that, inside, we're nothing of substance, just crab men, we never deserved to have a nation, Virginia Dare and our ancestors should apologize for being born, and make sure to chop down the tree of liberty and drown it in the tears of the last patriot on its way down?

That's the damn tea. It's about ethics in journalism: for real this time. It's about ethics and duties all around.

I, for one, have gotten tired of hearing brazen throats drain the lifeblood from perfectly good words, such as "rights," when what they are saying is meaningless because they have no corresponding duty.

To be forced to mouth nonsense is profoundly dehumanizing. And yet we allow ourselves to be forced to do it every day, by vile HR Karens who ooze into the pores of departments to extract rents and hold things up for the permanent commie incursion. Why do we put up with this? Why do we hold as sacred civil "rights" that only strip of us our duties, the sacred privilege of our duties, without which we have no genuine rights?

Why do we accept some crying Anne Althouse Karen's word that the founders and centuries of common law were wrong, and some IYI progressive judges right, about the scope of civil rights?

What about the sacred?

Aren't we sick of public schools and other services profaning the sacred and straining to abuse our children by turning them into involuted crab people, who can't stand the mildest charge without exploding into histrionic sophistry?

Are these our kids?

* * * the reality of life is that you tend to ask yourselves these questions, questions about the way it "has always been," when it seems like there's an immediately-available better option.

There's a strong status quo bias.

The crab people are counting on it.

Recall, they really thought that DONALD TRUMP, of all people, was going to quit, and THAT was their big hope.

They are now hopeless: they have no hope, but will continue mechanically cycling through a laundry list of common evasions until held to some compulsory process.

We have nothing to fear from the crab people. I've faced them before, in the form of all the best ibanks in a while. It was irritating, but never actually hard, to address their arguments on the merits, because again, they had none: they were relying on Obama and Geithner to make everything right, which I can only presume they did, given that the entire U.S. government was arranged as a massive scam to skim from taxpayers and dole out free money to permanent agitators, whose activities could be reported by media as strong reason we needed more money for programs.

Why are we letting these schemes continue? -- It used to be the case that the final, and most powerful, resource of the illicit Praetorian Order that seems to have been in full control of the US until Trump accidentally got elected, was the FBI and CIA.

See for example how AUSA Acosta dropped all charges against Epstein just on the vague insinuation that he was "intelligence-involved."

Now, think about that. We've got (foreign) intelligence using underage girls in order to create blackmail material on our dudes.

What intelligence purpose does that serve?

What purpose does literally anything the FBI or CIA do serve? When have they ever had to justify themselves in anything but a vague way?

Could it be that they've always, functionally if not by design, just been extractive gangsters?

Again, the pro-LEO biases in the general population are usually strong enough that this type of heterodox thought is not entertained by the mainstream.

But we are well past there now. We could have restoration, or we could have terror; we may have both.

Now consider again what Trump may be doing. That he may actually love America, actually be deeply-wounded and angered by the (former) CPA members like Brennan ginning up civil wars with media control and the Magic Trick and then threatening anyone in the U.S. who says boo.

If Trump wanted us all to have a really merry Christmas and hit the New Year feeling good about all this, would he have invoked the Insurrection Act and put Mayor Bowser in chains and declare martial law? No, of course not. The DNC were trying to provoke him to create some sort of incident, but even assuming that could've been dealt with by just executing all the officers involved (probably -- even in the military, people tend not to consider they might just be rounded up and shot en masse, it's a bit too shocking for desk jockeys), would that be a good end to the story?

Or what about if, after Trump was way ahead on election night and then we all saw a coordinated PAUSE and DUMP and observed Dems immediately begin papering the airwaves with practices coordinated lies about it they'd picked up on a conference call (which they REALLY shouldn't have had, ooooo boy, journalist idjits, but that's a different story #MOAB), he'd sent security forces in to round up basically the entire DNC, heads of several MSM co.'s, etc.? There'd be blood in the streets!

No, as much as it pains me, while we TRUMPMOS know that Trump could have simply detonated the MOAB that his As-Yet-Unrevealed Counselor set up us for him, that would've simply ripped the nation apart.

Unlike the Crabmen, whose shtick is to move into a well-functioning town and then practice at sophistry and idolatry until all color and light and sunshine and truth has been drained from it, the people reduced to mere factors of production, POTUS is an inspiration leader. America was already dying; his first term did not make her great again, but watching him fight alone may started her pulse.

Anyhoo, off to catch some Z's. Lighter posting schedule for a bit as I have to set some stuff up.

As I see it, my role in doing any legal analysis is over -- I'm a sap, but not going to fall for Trump's narrative construct on an ongoing basis.
